

After almost two decades of building long bows and teaching the craft for nearly the same, Bowyer Tom Turgeon from Boise Bows and Arrows has decided to promote his workshops via the Web.... and the brochure you are currently reading! Formerly, word-of-mouth advertising had enabled us to successfully cultivate our business from our home state of Idaho. With a wide variety of outdoor recreational opportunities here, teaching longbow building and other wilderness-related skills fit naturally into our company's philosophy.

In the last 15 years we have made our long bow building workshops available to individuals and private organizations by traveling and teaching in numerous locations throughout the United States. Regardless of the region we have found many students possessing that same desire to learn the ancient skill of long bow building.

Explore our website's Classes and Schedule sections at www.boisebowsandarrows.com to learn more about these unique workshops now available at a location near you!

I have read several bow building books, watched a few videos and DVD's on the subject, and taken another "bowyer's" bow building class. NONE of these came close to "filling in the blanks" of long bow building the way Tom's class does. Tom has the ability to combine his experience and knowledge with a passion rarely seen today. I found his workshops (Long Bow Building and Long Bow Finishing) to be very thorough, educational and just plain FUN. I would have traveled further and paid more- years and years ago- had I known the OVERALL VALUE of his classes. Save time, learn more. Take the classes. You will be glad you did!
