Blessings from Beth...

I'm not sure how many know this, but Don and I live in a house that will be 100 years old in 2011. We are the third family to live there since it was built. (Glen Brindley's grandparents were the residents before us!)

One thing we have learned over the years is that there is constant upkeep with our home. Finding replacement parts for plumbing, lighting and the steam boiler have proven to be a real challenge at times! Over the years, we have learned to work on the house as needed...as time allows...NOT giving in to timelines for completion or letting the distractions of scaffolding inside our home become our focus. We generally do needed work on the outside first, that way the neighbors have no idea how many ladders, paint buckets and scrapers are sitting idly inside!!

It's work - but it's home!

Our homes are places where we 'live'; where we are real and genuine. Our homes should be the place where Galatians 5:22, 23 is always true - first.

Each believer's heart is a dwelling place - a temple. It is the place where God has taken up residence! There is always work to be done - repair work, replacement work! It's ongoing, it's tedious, and sometimes painful, but oh the joy of seeing His design! Timelines and the distractions of this life can frustrate us in much the same way as renovations of any kind, but then we finally realize it is in the 'letting go' that His greatest work is accomplished! He is there each and every day, ready to complete His work in us! The greatest surprise about His interior work?! It's evident on the exterior too!

My encouragement to you? Meet Him each morning - let your plans give way to His - allow Him to do His work and then be ready for the positive comments you'll hear from your neighbors!

Blessings from my 'heart-home',

Beth

Melodious Moments...

A funny thing happened to me this weekend at the local garden center. I had decided to pick up a few potted flowers . . . I believe they are called color bowls . . . to add some color to my dreary-looking deck.

Having loaded my flat-bed cart with all kinds of pre-potted assortments, a woman approached me asking if I had seen the Salvia? Salvia? I might have seen it, but I would have had to know what it was in order to know I had seen it. Not wanting to seem ignorant or uninformed and wanting to fit in with the gardening crowd, I kind of mumbled around and said, as I waved my hand, "Maybe it's over there somewhere."

The woman then continued by asking me what I thought of some blooming plant she was holding . . . said it was supposed to bloom until the first frost. I just nodded approvingly and told her I thought it was lovely.

Lesson for the day . . . don't assume people know about plants and gardening just because they are at a garden center. But there really was a greater lesson as I continued to ponder the encounter the rest of the afternoon and that is this . . .

Don't assume people know God or His word simply because you see them at church or their children attend an Impact home group. They might just be trying to seem like they know in order to be accepted and not feel ignorant.

We have a great opportunity this month to reach out and invite women to come attend Son Exposure. Don't assume that they will hear about it and come on their own. Invite them to come with you! Not only will we hear messages from Women of Faith speakers, but we will also hear a powerful testimony of God's grace from a different woman from our body each week.

No Son-screen needed for this exposure!

Hope you can join us!

Melody
