Blessings from Beth...

The history books of the Old Testament are filled with such great stories and examples for living! When the Lord gave victories - great or small - there was singing, dancing and loud celebration. The songs were 'made up' - a blow by blow account of what Jehovah had accomplished! "He did this...and then He did this...and before our very eyes He accomplished this...O sing, Israel..."

When God does great and mighty things in our own lives, we ought to learn to sing as the ancients did. Instead of sharing that 'God answered prayer' - why not proclaim with dancing and singing that "God did this...and then He did this...and then He continued by doing this...?"

Let the world know - in detail - that He is a God who answers according to our specific need and His Divine purpose. Then give them the 'blow by blow' instead of a one-liner!!!

Singing His praises!

Beth

Melodious Moments...

It has been a tough few weeks for our family as we have hit a bit of a snag with our daughter Kate's health. It's been a time filled with hospitalizations, surgical procedures and about 20 doctor's appointments. There is a lot of time during those appointments to sit and think . . . too much time really.

At one point, as we were waiting for Kate to come out of surgery, I turned to a friend of mine and said, "Do you ever question the goodness of God?" It's not that I really questioned the true goodness of God, because I KNOW that it is His very nature. But those are the kinds of lies the enemy loves to whisper at times when we are the most vulnerable.

I thought about Jesus when he was in the desert. He had fasted for 40 days-hungry and thirsty, and I'm betting he wasn't getting the physical rest he needed either. When the enemy began to tempt him and twist the very words of Jesus' Father, he defended himself with the truth of God's word.

When tough times hit, we can also feel as if we are in a desert. We overlook our physical needs (eating, drinking and resting) and may find it hard to find the time with God that our spirit so desperately needs. We become isolated and left to the thoughts that rattle around in our brain. It's those times that we have to KNOW His very nature and the truth of his word. That way, when the enemy whispers in your ear, you will have the truth of God to be able recognize the lie.

There are lessons to be learned in the desert, but it's always good to get back to the green grass of home!

Thank you for all the prayers and encouragement.

Melody
